A Strong Growth of Sentiment Against the British Peers.

"Away With the Lords" the Campaign Cry of London Radicals.

GLADSTONE'S SPEECH DID NOT FILL THE MEASURE OF EXPECTATION.

His Followers Hoped to Hear a Stronger Arrangement of the Upper House—Mr. Astor's Newspaper Declares Radicals Will Follow the Great Coal Strike—Attempts to Form a Trust—Help for the Distressed.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—There can be no doubt Mr. Gladstone's speech in Edinburgh, which is universally accepted as reflecting his policy for the coming session of Parliament at least, was something of a disappointment to all political parties in Great Britain. The speech, however, was judged by the members of the House of Commons, who were present, as a masterpiece of oratory, particularly as to the question of the House of Lords. The speech was a masterpiece of oratory, particularly as to the question of the House of Lords. The speech was a masterpiece of oratory, particularly as to the question of the House of Lords.

On the other hand there is an unmistakable tone of regret in the Tory and Unionist organs that the great Liberal leader did not make this issue so clearly defined that they could go before the country with it, but Mr. Gladstone did not threaten either the abolition or even a serious limitation of the powers of the Upper House, and stressed the fact that he was going to consent to the discussion of the subject in the House of Commons. The speech was a masterpiece of oratory, particularly as to the question of the House of Lords.

Mr. Astor's newspaper, by the way, out-cries any of the Tory journals. In an editorial the other day it declared the revolution in the House of Commons to be a revolution in the House of Commons. The speech was a masterpiece of oratory, particularly as to the question of the House of Lords.

After the encouragement given it by the National Liberal Club, the main cause of its activity is the League of Nations. The speech was a masterpiece of oratory, particularly as to the question of the House of Lords.

Discussions of the forthcoming production by Mr. Daly of Fanny's "Foresters," at the theatre in Cranbourne street, Clement Scott says today in the Telegraph: "I have been privately informed of the intense interest in the play by the public."

The speech was a masterpiece of oratory, particularly as to the question of the House of Lords. The speech was a masterpiece of oratory, particularly as to the question of the House of Lords.

Boydton, the American, Who Tried to Blow Up a Rebel Ship.

The Incident Involves This Country in the Brazilian Controversy.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND AND SECRETARY HERBERT DISCUSS THE AFFAIR.

They Want No Repetition of Acts of Americans During the Brazilian Revolution—Kapitulation Instructions Sent to Minister Thompson and the Captain of the Charleston—Foreign Intervention May Follow Up a Truce.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 30.—Secretary Herbert is in a quandary over the incident of the American, Boydton, who was arrested by the Brazilian naval commander at Rio for allegedly firing the British flag on a tag he had seized for the purpose of attacking the Brazilian insurgents. The secretary is inclined to think, however, that it will not develop into an international controversy.

The Navy Department officials are, nevertheless, not a little disturbed by the incident, because they fear that Boydton is not the only American who has been guilty of violating the strict neutrality which the Navy Department as well as the State Department has made every effort to have maintained by all American citizens since the Brazilian civil war.

An Alibi Between Two School Boys Which May Result in a Murder.

A fight, which may result in a murder, occurred between two school boys at the corner of Third street and Russell avenue shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. George Sims, 15 years old, living at 2620 South Twelfth street, and John Hissell, 15 years old, residing at 2106 Blumhard street, were the participants.

THE WHISKY TRUST.

Another Big Deal Said to Be in Process of Incubation.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The Whisky Trust is incubating another big deal. At present this trust controls nearly every distillery of any consequence in this country. The object of the trust is not only to control the output of liquor, but also to control its price.

HABES CORPUS.

The Lawyers of J. B. Weeks, in Costa Rica, Will Strive for It.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Sept. 30.—J. B. Weeks, the alleged New York defaulter, is still a prisoner, but is allowed to go about the city on business, accompanied by a guard. His lawyers say all that can be said now is that they have secured a writ of habeas corpus, which would be presented today or Monday.

George Van Zandt was arrested last night by the second district police upon suspicion of having stolen a black horse and buggy he was driving. Reports of the theft of two horses and vehicles corresponding with the "Found in Van Zandt's possession" have been received by the police, one from Belleville and one from Springfield. A reward of $500 is offered for the recovery of the horse.

New White House Rules.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 29.—Several important changes looking towards protecting the President from needless interruption have recently been inaugurated at the White House. The latest of these which has just been announced will make it necessary for

Senators and Representatives in future to confer with Private Secretary Thurber when calling to see the President, as to the nature of their business. It is frequently the case that audience with the President is absolutely necessary and that by submitting the matter to Mr. Thurber, who will, at a convenient season submit it to the President early and satisfactory action can be secured. The President has no objection to Mr. Thurber's bringing him to see and confer with all the people who seek an audience with him. He has asked the members of the board to assist him in his studies and to relieve him of the heavy and growing burdens of listening to applicants for office and examining some of the recommendations for favors. The only callers at the time were the President, therefore, in a few minutes the President will be admitted to that study of the future will be admitted to that study of the President's office, will be Cabinet officers and such persons as may have an obligation.

THIRTY-FOUR PAGES.

SUNDAY OCTOBER 1, 1893.

His MASSACHUSETTS constituents are wondering why Mr. Morse did not polish off Mr. Fithian.With the revenue collections $330,000 behind last year's mark the prospect for the new City Hall is not very bright.The members of the Building Committee should go to the Pope School and the High School when they get hot. The pu-bics are cold.When the Russian fleet shall have sailed away from Toulon President Carnot should cite our ex-President to visit Paris with vice-wagon.The Cordage Trust is finally reorganized.
As Atty.-Gen. Olney too busy playing tennis to stop to look after this violation of the law?MAYOR WALBRIDGE says he will pay the broad companies' bill out of the contingent fund. This determination is belated but virtuous.If we could only find another earth for the man with a mine and the man with a protected manufacturing plant they might divide it and give us a rest.Mr. McKINLEY is making three speeches a day in Ohio. Ben Harrison's prominence at the World's Fair has excited the Ohio man to renewed exertions.THE CAR cautions the most enthusiastic people in the world against enthusiasm. It is likely that he has effectively cooled any enthusiasm they may have had for him.If Atty.-Gen. Olney would appoint some Democratic District Attorneys they might help him in his prosecutions of the trusts.
Nothing of that kind can be expected from Mr. Miller's holdovers.THE Senate should break the entail of the Italian mission. The Astor family can have political honors as soon as any of its members show the requisite amount of political ability.THE Missouri plan of stopping train robbers meets with general approval.
Those who are crying for Federal protection should first consider this safe and wholesome expedient.THERE has been much solicitude for President Cleveland's health, but Vice-President Stevenson is the man who is really fading away. He has had to take in the entire debate of the Senate.THE Building Committee of the School Board is like the Arkansan who lived in a house with a leaky roof. When the weather was clear he did not need to mend it, and when it rained he couldn't.THE bill to take $75,000 from the harbor fund and put a roof on the new City Hall was talked to death by its friends in the House of Delegates. The value of silence is seldom appreciated by great orators.THIRTY-FOUR children of the crowded Shaw School are seated in the woodshed.
School children—especially boys—should not be placed in any woodshed. The inside of such a shed recalls to the small boy some of the most painful scenes of his brief and troublous existence.EDUCATORS who contemplate a visit to St. Louis to study our school system are respectfully requested to wait a while. By and by we are going to heat the school houses, when it will be more comfortable for visitors making the round of recitation rooms.SAID a member of the St. Louis Irish party on leaving for the Fair: "Bede, we were going to Chicago, and if we like it we'll be it." No doubt Chicago would be greatly improved if it were to fall into the hands of an enterprising Hibernian syndicate from St. Louis.THE religious congress at Chicago came on an Friday night. It may be called a success, although the theologians are as far apart on theology as ever. But, as one of the Oriental delegates said, it showed that "holiness, purity and charity are notthe exclusive possessions of any church in the world." This is a great gain. When all sects come to recognize the worth of those from whom they differ, they will at least abate the bitterness of their quarrels.On another page will be found the results of a canvass of the State, made by the Post-Dispatch for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not Senators Cookrell and Vest represent the sentiment of Missouri in their attitude toward the Wilson repeal bill. The opinions are those of representative business and professional men.
It may be taken as a fair index of public feeling on the subject. A full report is printed in the country edition. In the city edition the St. Louis and Kansas City interviews are printed in full, with a summary of those collected through the State.THE little woodshed, a picture of which is printed elsewhere, should not be treated with contempt. There are many little boys now being educated within its walls, and who knows but what one or some of them may become Presidents. The log school-house has turned out more than one great man. Why shouldn't a woodshed school-house do as well? There is no magic in logs not possessed by plain planks. Do not complain, boys. Treasure this picture, and when you become great show it to your friends as an example of Building Committee wisdom and energy. The gentlemen of the committee know what they are about. They are wiser than you, boys. They want to make great men of you.

VAN ALLEN AS A SYMPTOM.

The Van Allen case, coming so soon after the bargain by which John Wanamaker procured a seat in the Harrison Cabinet, reveals a condition of political morality not pleasant to contemplate.The existence of a class which controls political action by means of money is always a menace to free government. It has proved ruinous to more than one republic, and like conditions prevailing in this country will of necessity produce the same consequences.The danger lies in the fact that the possession of great wealth is not necessarily accompanied with an interest in the common weal identical with that of the masses of the population. In case the wealth is not acquired by labor, but results from mere legislative favor, or from the partial operation of institutions, the interest of the rich man is positively antagonistic to that of the people, because his income is a plain and unearned subtraction from the stock of wealth produced by his fellow-citizens. It comes to him, not as a reward of personal effort, but in virtue of a mere privilege or "political pull" not consistent with the natural rights of those who rely solely upon their talents for a living or their merits for promotion.No one can deny that such a condition exists in this country. Through the operation of revenue laws enacted on the specious plea of "making work" for workers and through the almost unconditional surrender of public values by States and municipalities to corporations a large part of the growing wealth of the country has been diverted from its natural and rightful channels and poured generously into the pockets of a comparatively few individuals who are thus tempted to defend, at all hazards, a system so fruitful to themselves.It is to perpetuate this unequal distribution of the benefits of freedom that men like Van Allen, William Waldorf Astor, John Wanamaker and Andrew Carnegie make their huge contributions to the campaign funds of both parties. They pay for the good will of party managers and expect undue favors or at least protection for favors already received from those whom the people elect to promote the common good. In States and municipalities the same insidious influence works through lobbies established by corporations to see that no legislation is had aimed at their privileges. They are all in politics, very much in politics. Their power is not due to personal qualities or to their understanding of public needs, but rests entirely upon wealth, which is fast becoming more powerful than knowledge or patriotism.The Van Allens and the Wanamakers are not dangerous in themselves, but their activity in politics is a symptom of a disease in the body politic which must be cured if the patient is to survive.

JUG-HANDLED COURTESY.

The courtesy of the Senate rests upon the assumption that every Senator is a courteous gentleman who would not demand anything which his fellow members could refuse without discourtesy. It assumes that, when unanimous consent is asked to proceed to a vote and a Senator objects, he is prompted by considerations not inimical to the majority, but asks delay for reasons good and sufficient, and has in view no sinister purpose to make a cipher of the majority.But it is a poor rule that does not work both ways. Courtesy demands that the one Senator who makes objection treat the rest of the Chamber with proper consideration. He has no right in reason or common sense to set up his own opinions or interests and demand that they be treated more tenderly than he is willing to treat the legislative will of the Senate as a body.
Courtesy of the Senate ought to mean mutual concession and forbearance, and common sense certainly suggests that a very small minority should, on this principle, yield to the will of the majority.It is jug-handled courtesy that is keeping the Senate in a stew, breeding bitter-ness and hatred between Senators and degrading that honorable body in the eyes of the people. It is now discredited and almost contemptible, and it will not recover the good will of the country until real courtesy takes the place of the sham which now prevails.

ENGLAND AND INDIA.

The London Times, in commenting upon the recent appointment of Sir Henry Norman to the Viceroyalty of India, says:We rule that country by the sword, and it is the merest cant for us to pretend to forget that fundamental fact ourselves, or to hope that the races of India will forget it.This is a remarkably frank and honest confession for the accredited organ of English opinion to make in regard to Indian affairs. Usually the Times, and all other leading English journals for that matter, indulge in a mixture of religion, philanthropy, "demands of destiny and of duty," which is merely the conventional form of an impudent hypocrisy. There has been no conquest, in modern times, certainly,
of a weaker nation by a stronger, with which genuine religion and philanthropy had less to do; or in which duty and destiny had more of systematic and unscrupulous selfishness. Whether it be a good or a bad sign to hear such confession from such a source, it is at least refreshing to have the plain truth plainly told, instead of thinly-varnished lies which deceive nobody.India's, indeed, "ruled by the sword," has been ever since Robert Clive laid the foundation of British power by his victory at Plassey, June 20, 1757—and will be as long as England has a man and a musket to defend the most splendid province of that Empire "on which the sun never sets." Just 100 years after Plassey came what is called "The Great Mutiny," which taught the conquerors a lesson they are never likely to forget. At that time the army of occupation consisted of about 277,000 men, of whom only about 45,000 were Europeans and the rest natives. Today the European troops number between 75,000 and 100,000, while the natives are probably not more than 125,000. In other words England learned by the mutiny of 1857 that native troops are not to be trusted in any wide-spread rebellion against her authority, and she actually holds 200,000,000 people in complete subjection with less than 100,000 reliable soldiers! An imperial race are these Englishmen; the Roman mantle of worldwide sovereignty has fallen upon them.That England has tried, and is trying, to make her yoke as easy to the Indian neck as is consistent with the maintenance of her rule, nobody need doubt, for it is manifestly for her interest to do so. But all the padding and gilding cannot conceal the yoke from the wearers of it. They bother and feel it and they hate the yoke-makers with deadly and inextinguishable hatred. Not one of those Indian princes, blinding with jewels, who rode in Queen Victoria's jubilee procession, that would not have gladly washed his hands in her blood if he could. To him she was simply the embodiment of a foreign power, alien alike to his race and his religion, to which he was compelled to submit, but which he hoped some day to see dragged in the dust.Dr. Russell, who was correspondent of the Times during the closing months of the mutiny, tells a very suggestive anecdote bearing upon this point. He met at Simla—where he was obliged to go for his health—an Indian gentleman of high rank who had been educated abroad, and who,
under severest temptation, had given no sign of disloyalty to the Government.
When their acquaintance seemed to justify it he asked him one day to tell what his countrymen really thought about the English. The gentleman hesitated and begged to be excused, but when Russell insisted he said: "Well, sir, if you must know the truth, my people regard you as mysterious, superior and malevolent beings whom God allows, because of our sins, to afflict us for a time—but not forever."India is watching and waiting for her opportunity, which sooner or later is sure to come. When it does she will drive the last Englishman into the sea and give India to the Indians. Meanwhile, England remembers, and will not let India forget,
"that we rule that country by the sword."

TIGHTS IN THE PARLOR.

The lovely Jansen has met with opposition over in Kentucky. Her rights are not approved by the Rev. Dr. Eaton of the Baptist Church, who last Sunday thundered from his pulpit in denunciation of her inadequate apparel in which she appeared in one of the most respectable theaters of Louisville and before the most brilliant audiences.The reverend doctor did not attend the spectacle himself. His remarks were based on the lithographs in the show windows.
These exhibit the lady in her most fascinating attire—or lack of attire—and it is scarcely to be wondered that they should have excited the ire of a good man convinced of the evil of nudity in popular amusements.The doctor said he did not know whether any of his congregation had been to the Jansen attraction, but as quite a number of the masculine members have very bald heads—one or two of the deacons themselves being but sparsely covered—there may have been a lurking suspicion in his mind that some of his flock had unthoughtfully strayed.If his congregation thought it was right for a woman in such a dress to appear before hundreds of eyes, he wanted to ask whether she would be allowed tocome into their parlors or sit at their tables in such a dress. If it was proper for young women to appear on the stage so clad, it could not be improper for all ladies to dress in that way for their parlors or even for the streets. If fashionable America supports such things it was but a step to parlor and street costumes of the Jansen fashion.Possibly the fact that the Jansen tights are not fashionable for parlor and street wear makes them demoralizing in the theater. Once accustomed to tights, mankind would think nothing of them. The decollate dresses often worn by pure women in parlors are quite as bad as garments closely fitted to the lower limbs.
Nor would tights put ill-shaped limbs at a disadvantage. Padding would make every woman perfect. The good Dr. Eaton would do much to keep people away from theaters if he could make the wearing of tights unlawful. Even the male biped, clothed in tights, might be happier. He would not have to erase his breeches every morning.A HIGH tariff organ has this curious pa-graph concerning the work of the Wilson Committee:The idea of a tariff for revenue found especial favor when there had accumulated in the United States Treasury a surplus, derived largely from customs duties. Whatever force such a theory may have possessed at that time has entirely disappeared with the complexion of conditions. Instead of a surplus the nation is confronted with an enormous deficit. In addition to this the necessary expenses of the Government have largely increased. Last year it took $382,- 907,310 to run the Government. This year it will require something like $600,000,000.Precisely; the enormous deficit was created by the Republican party under the lead of Harrison, Reid and McKinley, for the purpose of making a low tariff impossible. But they overshot the mark.
The present duties are so high that imports are discouraged and in many instances prohibited altogether. When they are lowered imports will increase and more revenue will be received than before.
A careful adjustment will be needed, but on the whole customs duties may be expected to increase after McKinleyism is abolished. Besides a tax on incomes is contemplated. This will fall largely upon the men who dictated the McKinley law.
They will be hoist with their own petard.
The situation is very satisfactory.The following passage from Mr. Gladstone's great speech was heeded lustily:
It is a sad and a serious mistake of political affairs that the House of Lords, by some accident or collateral process, should bring about a dissolution of the House of Commons, depend upon it, the people will not consider the home rule bill alone, but will mix with it other questions upon which they have a strong opinion, and when it is too late, that they ever raised an issue.These are "words with the bark on them." The Democracy is very lively in England and very determined. That they understand the gravity of the situation is clearly shown by the prompt approval given this bold utterance by the Premier."The country would be more favorable to the admission of New States if it could have assurance that a majority of their people are disposed to vote patriotically on the money question," says a contemporary. But if these proposed new States happen to have the population requisite for Statehood their people should be allowed to judge for themselves what is patriotic. It is not for the old States to say how the new ones shall vote, and a people worthy of admission to the Union would not be likely to make a bargain in order to get in.The large attendance at the World's Fair during the past two months insures the financial success of the undertaking.
The directors report that all debts will be paid out of the receipts, and something will be left to return to the stockholders.
In all respects, therefore, the Columbian Exposition surpasses all previous enterprises of the kind.The Chicago Herald asserts that all distinguished train robbers have their homes in St. Louis, and that they are much honored and respected here. It is true that some train robberies have been planned in St. Louis, but train robbers have found this city a very unhealthy locality for their sort.
The worst train robber who ever plotted in St. Louis is much above the miserable sandbagger of Chicago, who is too cowardly to venture beyond the dark alleys of the wicked Windy.THERE are shadows in his heart;
There is gloom upon his brow;
From this life he soon shall part;
He now feels it all, somehow.
For gray's come in his whiskers.All the day in study brown,
Sad he asks the reason why,
And there's not a man in town
Who doesn't see he's going to dye.
For gray's come in his whiskers.It is a sad murder and suicide at Indianapolis, and all brought about by the interference of a mother-in-law. Had she stood quietly by when Mr. Hunt was thrashing her daughter, and had she been promptly at the threshold to open the door for him, when he came home from his home, all would have gone smoothly as a marriage bed. A mother-in-law destitute of tact is sure to disturb the domestic circle more or less.AMERICAN enterprise is even showing its head in the Brazilian civil war. An American citizen has been caught illegally trying the British flag and preparing to blow up the insurgents with his torpedo. It is very difficult to confine American energy. It is fortunate that we have not a new war on our hands every month through some irresponsible citizen who wants to help regulate affairs abroad.dead will soon be in the majority in Uncle Sam's newly opened territory.
SENIOR TURPIN has a brother, who did not visit him in forty years. The Chicago householder who has remained at home during the war is only richer than Lord had given him relatives so considerate as Mr. Turpin's brother.Geo. W. CHILDS has bought a log house at the World's Fair and will have it sent to his country place at Wootton. It is to be hoped that Mr. Childs is not attempting to cut down expenses while it is so necessary that all our money should be kept in circulation.UNCLES SAMUEL is Telling a story
Of Maximo Mera
To impatient Spain, but unless the Infanta and Vergara intercede for him, that $3,000-000 will hardly be forthcoming.The dying "man who broke the bank at Monte Carlo" adds his testimony to the volume of evidence that gamblers do not leave fortunes when they pass away. Even the lucky ones lose or waste their winnings.If there is anything left of the contingent fund it should be devoted to the organization of a body guard for Col. Ed Butler.COL. BUTLER should resolve to roll no more bones than he finds in the garbage pail.Touching on the Gopdeller.
From the Reading Herald.The occupation of the gay gondolier of Venice is likely to be curtailed. Venetians who have been in the Chicago Fair have observed the celerity, the noiselessness, the cleanliness and convenience of the electric launches, and it is reported that they have engaged a number of them to ply upon the canals of their native city. It will be something of a shock to the old bridges and the old places of the Doges to see these queer crafts speeding through the water without any apparent motive power, but when the echoes of Jerusalem are awakened by the shriek of the locomotive, old Venice can hardly be expected to resist the invasion of the electric current. The dead trolley traverses the streets of Damascus, the pyramids look down upon the electric light, a railroad is being built to Timbuctoo and the King of the Campanis islands and the telephone. The electricity and the steam are becoming universal.

"Don't Help the Matter."

From the Buffalo Commercial.
We cannot see that the letter of ex-Secretary Whitney helps matters at all. He does not say that Mr. Van Allen made the contribution to the campaign fund, but he reinstates the institution that the appointment was made in compliance with any contract. He seems, however, to have as good as informed the President that such a construction would be put on the selection of Van Allen for any position under the administration; and that the President's nearest friends felt in that way is proved by what we have stated in the opening of this article.It is impossible for the President's friends to say that he has made a serious mistake and one that he can only be atoned for by prompt withdrawal of Van Allen's name, mortifying as that might be.

Reasoning With Mr. Feller.

From the New York Tribune.
Calm your rage, Feller. You do not represent so many people as you think you do.
In the judgment of many thoughtful persons in this country much that you think you know as to the conduct of public affairs is not so,
and there is very little of it that would not be a relief to the country and an advantage to hold a stopper on. Your predecessor, John James Ingalls, was given to much speaking. He liked the sound of it. The result was that he followed his mouth out into private life. Take warning, Feller.
The things you don't say you won't be sorry for.

Polite, but Potent.

From the Boston Globe.
It is reported that the Retail Coal Exchange of New York has "recommended" that dealers charge 25 cents a ton more for coal after Oct. 1. Under the new law the Exchange cannot now dictate what the price of coal shall be, but it is permitted to "recommend." Of course "dictate" and "recommend" do not mean quite the same thing in the dictionary, but in the coal business the recommendation is just as potent as dictation, and far more polite.

The Tendency of Machine Rule.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

(All matter printed in this column must be written on one side of the paper.)A Head Assistant's Complaint.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:The heroic effort of "Substitute" in Sunday's issue of the Post-Dispatch has encouraged an old teacher to give his side of the story.
This Third Assistant is not the only teacher who has a grievance on the salary question.
Of course it is not necessary to review the salary of the third assistants, as given by "Substitute," as the entire article is a positive fact and can be substantiated by any teacher of the corps, or Mr. Long himself.
She also mentioned the raise of the handsome salary of the first assistants. Her patiently laboring for ten or twelve years if she is promoted to first assistant she obtains an increase of $4,184 a month for the rest of her life. The school she enters for the rest of her life is only twenty-nine head assistants receiving the salary sum of $800 a maximum, or $70,854 a month. After spending twenty years in cultivating the hearts and intellects of the youth of St.
Louis, she, according to the statement of our Superintendent, is still to be untaught to enter the high school and receive the sugar plums she has conscientiously worked for, and certainly deserves them.If there is anything left of the contingent

LOST HIS MAN.

An Illinois Sheriff Takes Joe Hardin From Detective Smith.

The Train Robber Is Now in the St. Louis Jail.

CHIEF HARRISON INDIGNANT OVER THE SLIGHT TO HIS DEPARTMENT.

Smith and his Prisoner Met by the Centralists at Odessa and a Warrant for Hardin Presented—Chief Harrison Characterizes the Action of the Illinois Officer as Contemptible.

Joseph Hardin, the Centralia train robber, who was taken to St. Louis last night over to the Illinois State Prison, did not reach here. Hardin was taken to the train at Odessa by the sheriff of that county, who had a State warrant for his arrest. When Smith and his prisoner reached Odessa, Ill., which is the junction of the Ohio & Mississippi and Illinois Central railroads, the sheriff boarded the train, and producing his warrant, demanded his prisoner. Detective Smith had nothing to do but to turn over the man to him. Hardin was then transferred to another train and taken to Centralia.

ST. LOUIS POLICE INDIGNANT.

To say that the St. Louis Police Department are sore over the manner in which their man was taken to the Illinois State Prison is no exaggeration. It is a fact that the police have been brought to St. Louis to be arrested for information about two robberies, one in Missouri, at St. James, which it is now known he had a hand in, and one at Forrest Lawn, Ill., but few miles below St. Louis. Enough has been said about the police since his capture to convince them that he was the man in the train. He was the man in the train, and he was the man in the train.

Train Robber Joseph Hardin.

and it was to ascertain who assisted him in the work that was to be brought to St. Louis. The police believe that the least the Illinois authorities could have done under the circumstances was to have allowed them to have Hardin for a few days, and had there been the slightest doubt about it, he would have been brought back on a Missouri warrant.

It was the police of St. Louis who located him and run him down after two weeks' chase and naturally the department believe they should have been allowed, after doing the work, to have turned the prisoner over to the sheriff of Centralia in the proper manner.

The action of the sheriff of the county is without precedent. Detective Smith, according to the St. Louis Police Department, is not wholly blameless as should have started back with the prisoner Friday morning instead of waiting till Saturday.

By their action the Illinois authorities have undoubtedly spoiled the capture of the man, and the police of St. Louis are not likely to be pleased with the result.

Heim had expected to encounter difficulty in securing the prisoner and had taken the precaution to secure permission from the railroad authorities to detain the train in Odessa until the war for possession of the prisoner was over. Smith, the St. Louis detective who had Hardin in charge, saw that he had no power to hold and proceed further with him and after a short parley with the local officials surrendered him to the sheriff of Illinois, who placed him in a cage and conveyed him to St. Louis where he is now in jail with the other prisoners.

Hardin had agreed to go to St. Louis on leaving Cincinnati without requisition papers, and when his delivery was demanded to the local authorities, he agreed at first to be taken to St. Louis, but when he learned that he was to be taken directly to St. Louis instead of being delivered to the sheriff, he changed his mind and insisted on being delivered to the sheriff. The wounded man's arm is not as dangerous as reported. The flesh has a healthy look and gives him very little trouble. He made an open confession to having participated in the robbery, and says that it was he who had the tunnel with Kaskagman Armstrong and was reaching for the bell cord to stop the train with the intention of jumping off when the men coming into the baggage car with guns and supposed the train had been got into a calvert. While there a wild scene broke out. Hardin was seen to discharge himself from Armstrong's grasp and make his escape. Otherwise he could have shot Saunders dead before Saunders fired the first shot. He claims that Jones had stopped with friends and a description of the engineer before he and O'Dwyer were ready for their work. O'Dwyer was ready for their work. O'Dwyer was ready for their work. O'Dwyer was ready for their work.

Found the Allisop Baby.
VANDALIA, Ill., Sept. 20.—The 6-weeks-old Allisop baby, which has been missing since Thursday last, was found here to-day in the possession of Mrs. Barthlow, who claims the child was given her by its mother, sheriff Steinbohr and a posse of men were about to start to search for the lost baby when it was learned that Mrs. Barthlow had at her house a child much like the Allisop baby. When asked by the officer to see the baby, she said she and her husband wanted a child and that she secured the Allisop baby with its mother's consent. Edward Allisop, father of the child, was informed of the discovery of the little one and took it home.

WASTE NOT, WANT NOT.

The old time adage, was all right in those days. Now, if you happen to want an advertisement in the Sunday Post-Dispatch, you will cause you to want.

BOLD JACK WOOD.

The Mail Thief and All-Around Crook in Kansas City.

HE BELONGED TO THE GANG LED BY PRENTICE TELLER.

Their Escapades Recalled—The Lewis Murder Case on Trial at Mexico, Mo.—Train Robbers Fought—Threatened and Disembowled—Dan Coughlin's Case—The Calendar of Crime.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 30.—Jack Wood, wanted here for rifling letter boxes, and a member of a gang of post-office thieves, of which Prentice Teller, a former clerk at a St. Louis express office, and James E. Stratton were the leaders, were brought here this afternoon from Minneapolis.

Wood also victimized several local banks by means of raised checks. Seven of the gang have been sent to the penitentiary in various states. They operated with false keys invented by Teller in Pittsburg, Cleveland, St. Louis, Detroit, Cincinnati, Baltimore, Washington, Louisville, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Omaha, Denver, Dallas, Nashville, Atlanta and this city.

Wood was captured at St. Paul. Teller absconded with $100,000, was sent to the penitentiary at Jefferson City, escaped in 1928, became the leader of the gang of which Wood was a member, was sent to the penitentiary at Jackson, Mich., in 1930, but escaped last May by hiding in a box of pick handles, in which he was carried outside the prison grounds. Stratton escaped from the penitentiary at Canon City, Colo., two weeks ago. Thomas C. Bolen, another member, escaped from jail at Nashville before his case came up for trial.

RAPISTS AND A ROPE.

VIENNA, Ill., Sept. 30.—James, alias "Cooney" McConnell, and Bill Norris, two young men of this place, whose reputations are not the best in the world, were arrested last evening by Constable Henderson at Chandelville on charges of criminal assault and battery. The two men were taken to the Chandelville police station, where they were held. The attempted outrage was committed last Sunday and was only prevented by the timely arrival of friends in the neighborhood. The community is considerably shocked by the crime. McConnell and Norris were taken to Havana, Ill., this morning to be given a preliminary hearing. About a year ago these same men, while under the influence of liquor, terrorized the people of a nearby town, by riding through the streets of that village brandishing revolvers promiscuously and shooting Officer Beard and another villager.

FOUND HANGING TO A TREE.

WICHITA, Kan., Sept. 30.—Near the border south of Caldwell the body of Herman Banner of Denver, Colo., was found hanging to a tree this afternoon. There are strong indications of foul play, as from papers found on the dead man he was apparently wealthy. A letter found on him addressed to Denver told of his having secured a fine claim in the strip and added that two constables had come in to take him to the state penitentiary. It is suspected that they may have murdered him, hanging him across the line and hanging him with the double object of directing suspicion from themselves and of making the hanging appear to have been a suicide.

TRAIN ROBBERY FOILED.

OUTH BRID, Ind., Sept. 30.—An account is published here of an alleged attempt to hold up the Lake Shore Atlantic Express No. 15, which leaves Chicago at 10:30 p. m. Neither the place nor the exact date of the attempt can be learned, but it is said to have occurred one night this week at a point not many miles east, probably near Elkhart or Goshen. The train was carrying a large number of passengers and was once stopped by the train. The express car is believed not to have suffered any loss. The passengers were excitedly discussing the strange affair, but could obtain no information from the train.

DAN COUGHLIN'S CASE.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—The attorneys for Daniel Coughlin, charged with having murdered Dr. Cronin, appeared before Judge Brennan to-day and announced that their client be brought to trial at once. The state, not being ready to proceed with the trial, asked for further continuance, which was granted until the hearing of the case being postponed until the October term. Coughlin was convicted with the other two men, the Na-gal, at whose door Cronin's taking off was laid, and he was sent to the jail prison. The state supreme court gave him a new trial and he was released from the state prison.

MURDERED AND ROBBED.

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., Sept. 30.—Pleasant Farmer, a prominent citizen of Sebree, a station north of this city, was found lying in a field near his home murdered and robbed Friday morning. The day before he had received $2,000 in cash, back pension money, and when last seen alive this was upon him. He had been drinking the night before his death with several local characters, who have disappeared under very suspicious circumstances. The case is being handled with the utmost care and every effort is being made to bring the guilty parties to justice.

A NOTORIOUS BANK SWAG.

DOVER, N. H., Sept. 30.—A man under arrest here for stealing a box containing $600 in cash from the Dover Post-office, has been recognized by Boston officers as "Bugs" Coleman, alias Wm. Fanning, alias Eugene Johnson, a notorious bank swag. Coleman was born in New York and served time in Sing Sing, and is well known in all the principal cities of the United States, especially in Chicago, where he lived some time.

"SPEAK-BAST" COOPER.

SPRINGFIELD, W. Va., Sept. 30.—J. O. Cooper, a young man who resides at this place, is reported as the owner of a number of "speak-easies," came here a few days ago and lost a large amount of money in gambling. While here he was known as J. O. Smith and as such wrote a number of checks, which were cashed by business men. Cooper, alias Smith, then disappeared, but was arrested this afternoon at Marietta, O., for stealing.

JUST LIKE A KANSAS CITY GUY.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Sept. 30.—A well-dressed young man struck Miss Minnie Birmingham below on the breast as she was walking on Ohio avenue this morning and at the same time tried to seize her purse. As Miss Birmingham drew back the struck him in the breast with an umbrella, jabbed him in the breast with it and then knocked him from the sidewalk. Miss Birmingham is to be married Tuesday night.

WANTED IN KENTUCKY.

ASHLAND, Kan., Sept. 30.—Officers believe they have here one of the perpetrators of the recent robbery in Dover. James Boughner was arrested last night at this place. Kentucky officers with requisition papers are en route after him.

AN INSANE MURDERER PARDONED.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 30.—The governor pardoned a patient in the asylum for insane criminals yesterday. His name is Frank Stewart of Chicago, who killed his wife on account of jealousy and pleaded insanity to save his neck. He was accordingly sent to his asylum without a sentence, to remain until cured. A year ago he got a chance to leave the asylum, of which he promptly took advantage and returned to Chicago, where he re-entered the married state. Being discovered, he was sent back to Chicago, where he remained in the asylum until to-day. He left at once for his home and wife a sane man.

A CHARGE OF VIOLENCE.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Sept. 30.—Banker A. W. Little, the slayer of Lawyer Johnston, will not be tried in Wyandotte County, Judge

SAILING DIRECTIONS.

Rules Governing the Coming Race Between the Vigilant and Valerius.

New York, Sept. 30.—The Regatta Committee of the New York Yacht Club issued today the following sailing directions which are to govern the coming race for the America cup, between the Valerius and Vigilant, commencing Oct. 5.

The start will be made off Sandy Hook light, at 11:30 a. m. and the starting signal at 11:35 except as provided under general racing conditions. Course No. 1.—From the starting line to and around a mark fifteen miles to windward, or to leeward, and return, leaving the mark on the starboard hand.

Course No. 2.—From the starting line, ten miles to and around a mark, thence ten miles to the finishing line, thence ten miles to the outside of a triangle to port or starboard, according as the yachts are sent around.

Starting and finish lines will be between a point on the flagstaff indicated by a white flag, and the mainmast of the lightship, or other stake boat, if the start is made further out to sea. The starting and finish lines will be at right angles with the outward and home course, respectively. Compass courses will be set on the main topmast stay before the preparatory signal is made and will be left flying until after the start. The signals for course No. 2 must be begun before the preparatory signal is made.

When the Lordship arrived here on the Valerius he was perhaps the least fashionable man among the season passengers. He wore a coat of brown tweed that really looked like that one seen in the windows of ready-made clothing establishments wearing such alluring placards as "Xobxy."

Earl of Dunsen.

"Very well, $14.99." No fashionable tailor would have dared to acknowledge it as his creation. The coat was so fitting. The trousers, which gave no indication that they had ever been crumpled, bagged very badly at the knees. His head covering was a little cloth cap of light color, with a peak running down toward his nose that was such a dismal peak as to make one wonder that the maker of it had ever bothered his head about putting a peak on the cap at all. His shirt was of light blue material, white and a white waistcoat collar he had fastened a rather loud red neck scarf, with a small blue figure in its pattern. He displayed no jewelry, except a few small gold watch-chain links and a plain gold finger ring. The Earl, however, did not seem to be worrying about his appearance. Health Officer Jenkins about hit the nail on the head, when answering him said to a prominent young politician and the campaigner of this city, who came over on the Valerius with Lord Dunsen, and who was speaking of him said:

"He does not seem to bother much about dress, does he?"

"Well, he does not have to," answered Jenkins. "He has plenty of other capital."

TOP COAT AND CANE.

When he came ashore Lord Dunsen made a change of toilet only to the extent of replacing the cap with the little peak for a brown derby hat that was not new and carrying a slender and modest necktie.

When standing with his cane in his hands, his lordship has a habit of placing both hands behind his back and striking his legs with the stick. The "chappie" who would emulate him in this habit should bear in mind that he carries a light stick. Even when surrounded by the splendors of Waldorf, the Earl does not deem it necessary to discard comfort for style. He changed the light suit for a rather better thing one of white pique silk, in which a small diamond sparkled. He wore an overcoat out of doors that was very loose in the back and had strap seams. It was of a very decided yellow brown color.

Evening dress.

This costume was not more elaborate than a clerk with an income might wear at his business, was good enough for the Earl until he was in the evening to go and dine with Mrs. Faran Stevens. About the evening dress there was nothing distinctive except that the coat fitted extremely well and had very long tails.

THE RECORD.

Philadelphia's Cricketers Surpass All Previous Scores Against the Australians.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 30.—When play was resumed at 1:30 today the international cricket match between the Australians and Philadelphia, a good-sized crowd had gathered in anticipation of a continuation of yesterday's remarkable play, when at the close of the day the Philadelphians, who went first to bat, had accumulated 297 runs for loss of only four wickets. Bohlen and Sobie, whose remarkable batting yesterday was the feature of the play, again resumed the defense of the wickets for Philadelphia, the former with eighty-three runs and the latter with seventy-three. Weather clear and cool.

Trumble and Bruce were the bowlers, with Capt. Blackburn behind the wickets. After ten minutes' play Trumble, who bowled Robie with a Yorker, scored all for five wickets and the game was declared over. He had scored 114 runs, 104 for six wickets. J. W. Muller then joined Robie, who shortly afterward closed his big inning by being caught at point by Trumble. The latter was loudly applauded as he returned to the club-house with 108 to his credit, the biggest score ever in an international match in this city. Total score, 333 for seven wickets. J. I. Brown joined Muller.

Causey replaced Bruce, who succeeded in clean-bowling Muller, who had scored 114 runs, 104 for six wickets. At 1:10 o'clock 400 went in on the score-board.

When play was stopped for dinner, at 1:30 o'clock, the Philadelphians had scored 48 runs for eight wickets. Brown and Robinson had scored 23 and 27 respectively and the latter was out for 114 runs. The match was resumed at 2:30. The people had been coming steadily, and at that hour fully 10,000 were cramping the ropes and stands. Runs came steadily, but at 3:40 o'clock Robinson had the misfortune to slip, or other stake boat, if the start is made further out to sea. The starting and finish lines will be at right angles with the outward and home course, respectively. Compass courses will be set on the main topmast stay before the preparatory signal is made and will be left flying until after the start. The signals for course No. 2 must be begun before the preparatory signal is made.

BOWLING.

Creascents, Office Men, Grands and Comptons the Cocked Hat League.

It is as good as settled that the St. Louis Cocked Hat League will this season embrace only four teams—the Creascents, the Grands, the Office Men and the Comptons—yet there is a chance that two more teams may materialize. Granting, however, only the above number, the schedule will embrace only two games and play is not likely to begin until Oct. 16. The four teams mentioned will give a pretty symmetrical league, as the Comptons, although fourth in last year's tournament, promise this season to crowd the other clubs in a way they may not find pleasant. A meeting of the league will be held on Wednesday evening with the Office Men to close arrangements for the tournament.

The handicapping for the tournament on the Creascents alleys embraces 230 cocked hat rollers, Falcher, Cobb, Owen and who are scratched and Alvin, Adams, Thornton, Brown, Cassel, Downman, Donohu, Frank, J. C. Cassel, Fred W. Sullivan and J. J. Mehan, Sanders, Scott, Schaefer, Henry Winter and Weinberg are allowed five pins. With cooler weather the interest in the tournament is increasing.

Want clubs will compose the National League this winter is a little uncertain, but it is announced that play will no doubt begin Oct. 16 with a stronger array of teams than last year.

The Nationals will have the following team in the League: W. C. Gilman, President; Fred C. Orthwein, Secretary; Clifford B. Allen, George H. Lowe, Joseph Griesedick, J. C. Cassel, Fred W. Sullivan and J. J. Mehan, Captain. The team rolls on Monday nights at Schneider's.

DOE CASEL, ONE OF THE CRACKS OF THE WEST, WILL ROLL WITH THE NATIONALS AT SCHNEIDER'S THIS WINTER.

The Creascents lost Scott this season; their loss to the Office Men was a heavy one. A new cocked hat club is in the field at Schneider's—rolling on Friday night. It is reported that George Gilman is to roll with the Nationals this winter. He was formerly their first baseman and the Franklin line are to be congratulated.

Unless the clubs favoring a Ten Pin League take hold of the matter pretty soon, by electing delegates, the project will drop. There is a strong bowling interest at Belleville, Ill. What the matter was for the three crack clubs of the Bowling Association on Oct. 16 with a stronger array of teams than last year.

The Portersville Bowling Club of Cass avenue elected the following officers: President, Henry W. Overbeck; Vice-President, Fred C. Orthwein; Secretary, Clifford B. Allen; Treasurer, George H. Lowe; Joseph Griesedick, J. C. Cassel, Fred W. Sullivan and J. J. Mehan, Captain. The team rolls on Monday nights at Schneider's.

Both racing signs signify their assent by setting the affirmative signal (letter U) on the answering pennant will be hoisted on the flag.

These are the general racing conditions, arranged by mutual agreement. The racing rules, time allowance and system of wearers of the pennant will be hoisted on the flag.

THE ELKS CLUB

The Election of Officers Postponed to November 1.

A meeting of the Independent Order of Elks and of the Elks Club was held at the Hagan Building last night. It was originally intended to elect officers of the club, and effect a new organization, as the laws of the Independent Order of Elks no club can be connected with the order. President Joseph Goldsmith of the Elks Club said: "The meeting to-night was largely attended. We discussed the matter at length, and decided to postpone the entire affair to Nov. 1. You can say on my authority that the Elks Club and the Independent Order of Elks in this city have never been in a more flourishing condition. The postponement is only taken to allow certain details to be arranged." The meeting adjourned at 10:30, and the questions before it will be decided on Nov. 1.

A Voice That Pleases.
The many visitors of the St. Louis Exposition who were fortunate enough to hear Mr. Geo. Don Benio sing the Chaperon Parlor will be pleased to hear of his engagement to sing every afternoon at 8 and 8 o'clock until Oct. 15, when he leaves for his home in New York City to resume his engagement in that place. Mr. Don Benio has been under the training of Prof. Rogers of Berlin and his naturally falsetto voice has been cultivated to the highest degree of perfection. Mr. Edward Willis, the famous tenor of New York City, will render solos next week at their parlor that have made him famous in that city.

St. Louis Medical Society.
The St. Louis Medical Society met last night in the Board of Education Building, Dr. Shaw presiding. The only paper on the program for the evening was one by Dr. Frank P. Gillis entitled, "When Shall I Trephine?" At 8 o'clock Dr. Gillis, not being present, a recess was taken.
At 9 o'clock he still had failed to put in an appearance, and the session was adjourned until the following Saturday night was a bad time for the operation. Dr. Shaw then asked if there were any volunteers, and there being none the meeting adjourned until next week.

The Trustees of the Endeavor Society will run a special excursion for Endeavorers and their friends to Chicago next Friday night, Oct. 6. The train will leave at 8:40 p. m. Friday night for Chicago & Alton Railway and free reclining chair cars will be provided for the exclusive use of the Endeavor party.
The expense of the trip, which includes railroad fare, lodging and breakfast for five days, four admissions to the grounds and transportation to and from the grounds, will be $10.
Tickets and further information can be had on application to W. H. McClain, 1404 Lucas place.

SHOE CO. GREAT WRECKING AND REBUILDING SHOE PANIC

We must vacate our stores to make room for OUR MAMMOTH NEW STORES and have used our picks and shovels to their utmost capacity on all our FOOTWEAR and we propose to clean up and create a PANIC and break the record of all former shoe sales, such as the world has never before realized.

Note a Few of Our Wrecking and Rebuilding Prices.

We have sorted out 5,350 pairs of Women's, Misses' and Children's high and low shoes formerly worth 75c, $1 and $1.25. The entire lot will be Picked and Shoveled out of our wreck at 89c. Talk of panics and hard times, this is surely a world's wonder.

Here Goes Lot 12.—2,550 pairs of Women's Low Shoes, such as Oxford Ties, Strap Sandals, Bow Slips, Ooze Slips, Satin Slips, and in fact our entire lot of broken sizes are going in this Shovel and Pick Sale at 59c and 69c. No pair in this entire lot were sold less than $1.25, $1.50 and $2.

Lot 13.—We cleaned out 5,000 pairs of Misses' and Children's Cloth-Top Button Shoes from a bankrupt Eastern manufacturer, that downtown stores retail at $1.50, $1.75 and $2 a pair. Our Wrecking price will be, as long as they last, sizes 5 to 8, 69c; sizes 8 1/2 to 11, 79c; sizes 11 to 2, 89c. We also have 500 pairs of Misses' and Children's fancy Cloth-Top Spring-Heel Bluchers, hand weits and M. S., from the same manufacturer, that were made to retail at $2 and $3 a pair. Our Pick and Shovel price will be, sizes 8 to 10, $1.19; 11 to 2, $1.39; widths A to E. Same in Women's Spring-Heel Bluchers made to sell at $3.50 and $4, our price $1.99 and $1.69, sizes 2 to 6, widths A to E.

Lot 14.—We have sorted out of our stock 1,975 pairs of Men's $2.50, $3 and $5.50 Shoes, in Rals and Congress, all styles of toes, all widths, and propose to Shovel and Pick out the entire lot at $1.50. This is an opportunity of your life to get your shoes for mere song.

Lot 15.—$1.50 and $2 Boys' and Youths' Black and Tan Shoes are being dumped in our wreck and will be Shoveled and Picked out of this Wrecking Sale at 97c a pair. Thousands of other Wrecking, Shoveling, Picking and Rebuilding Bargains in our entire lot of Footwear will be thrown on our Wrecking Counters during this, The World's Largest Wrecking and Rebuilding Panic in Footwear.

Don't fail to call and look for our Immense Wrecking and Rebuilding SHOE PANIC SIGNS.

CONVICTED OF SEDUCTION.

John Hummel Seated to an Hour in Jail and Fined $400.
A jury in the Criminal Court yesterday found John Hummel of 808 North Broadway guilty of seducing Johanna Hanslick under promise of marriage and assessed his punishment at one hour in jail and to pay a fine of $400. The case occupied the attention of the Criminal Court for two days, and was followed by a suit in the civil courts for breach of promise. Hummel's father, Edw. Hummel, is a well-known business man in North St. Louis, conducting a wall paper and decorative establishment at 808 North Broadway. He is quite an extensive real estate owner and is said to be worth in the neighborhood of $50,000. John is 22 years old and has been married since the proceedings were begun against him by the young woman he wronged. The young woman in the case is a handsome blonde, is years old. She was employed in the Hummel household as a domestic, but claims that she was treated more as a member of the family than as a servant. She is a refined German girl, being well educated in her native language. She came to this country when she was 15 years old at the solicitation of an aunt who lives in St. Louis and who is quite well to do. She did not like living at her aunt's, and started out to make her own living. She thus came to live with the Hummels. A few months ago she gave birth to a child. The case was bitterly fought and a strong effort was made to blacken the young woman's testimony. This class of testimony was evidently disregarded by the jury or over-balanced by the testimony of witnesses who gave the young woman an excellent reputation before she met with young Hummel.

A PERMANENT EXPOSITION.

Returning visitors while viewing the great Mermont & Jaccard establishment of Broadway and Locust are constantly declaring that at the World's Fair is not shown so exquisite a collection of silverware, cut glass, bric-a-brac, etc.

BUSCH WOULD NOT SIGN.

The Brewer Rejects the Firemen's and Drivers' Scale—A Fight Insanitated.
Last night the Brewers, Beer-Wagon Drivers and Brewery Firemen's Unions held a meeting at Druid's Hall, which was largely attended by brewery employees from all parts of the city. The meeting was called to settle the difficulty between the Anheuser-Busch Brewery management and their beer-wagon drivers and firemen. The management has made a contract with the brewers, but has been putting off the drivers and firemen for several months past. Last night, a special committee waited on Mr. Adolphus Busch at Faust's, and requested him, for the last time, to sign the drivers' and firemen's agreement, but he refused to do so. This fact was reported to the assembled brewery employees who immediately passed a resolution recommending a boycott on Anheuser-Busch beer. This will have to be approved by the National Executive Board of the Brewers' Union, which meets in St. Louis, before the boycott can be inaugurated.
A hot contest is expected to grow out of this affair, and it is probable that the management of the various breweries will be come allies of Mr. Busch and discharge all union employees. The latter intend to boycott other breweries in the event of the successful termination of the Busch boycott.

A Judicial Wrangle.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 30.—Judge Cox of the Criminal Court was today cited to appear in the Circuit Court on Oct. 3 and show why he should not be punished for contempt. A couple of weeks ago the Circuit Court granted the Criminal Court to grant a change of venue to Joanne Carr, charged with incest. Judge Cox, holding that his court was of co-ordinate jurisdiction with the Circuit Court, paid no attention to the order.

Returned to Settle Up.
KANSAS CITY, Sept. 30.—Robert Kincaid, the banker of Linn County, Kan., whose failure in July involved half a dozen banks and ruined scores of farmers and business men to whom he had given notes bearing 10 and 20 per cent interest, has returned to Linn County, Kan., and declares that he will settle up.

TO JOIN HER LOVER.

Mrs. Kelly Fears Her Daughter Tease Has Gone to Chicago.
Mrs. Sarah Kelly of 1814 North Eighth street last evening requested the police to locate and arrest her 17-year-old daughter, Tease, whom she claims is a wayward and has, she claims, run away from home. Tease, it appears, was last summer considerably smitten with the charms of Neal Billinger, a young man, who recently left this city with the intention of making a trip to Chicago. The girl corresponded with him, and one of her letters which the mother found last night leads her to suppose that her daughter has gone to join him. The letter was found shortly after the girl left her home last evening, and set forth the fact that the writer had sent the girl money with which to buy a ticket upon the understanding that she was to join her lover in Chicago. Mrs. Kelly believes her daughter left on the 7:30 train over the Washburn line.

HE WAS UNWELSH.

But Was Hungry Enough to Be Ready to Buck the Tiger.
From the Detroit Free Press.
The tramp peeked over the back fence to see if there was a dog in the yard, and, seeing none, he slipped up to the kitchen door and knocked.
"Y'ain't got no dogs around, have you, miz?" he said to the cook, who answered the summons of the stranger.
"No, but we've got a Bengal tiger tied around the corner."
"Is he tied party safe, miz?"
"Yes, but I can untie him and he'll hunt you."
"Very hungry, miz?"
"Yes, he has't had anything to eat for two days."
"That's my ex-actly, miz, and I can sympathize with him. Untie him."
"Come in," she said, "and eat all you want, go the tiger can have a decent meal, and the tramp chuckled softly as he went in.

DENOUCED BY FOX.

The Anti-Catholics in Political Control of Denver.
DENVER, Colo., Sept. 30.—The American Protective Association promises to cut a bigger figure in the campaign in Denver this year than the silver question. The association has been hard at work during the past year, and so strong has it become that it was able to dictate the nominations of candidates on both the tickets, the Republican and Populist-Democratic tickets. It was not until after the nominations were made, however, that this fact became known, and the war has opened up in earnest. The local branch of the society made its first public appearance in Denver last fall, when it issued circulars denouncing Catholic nominees on all tickets. Before that it had worked more secretly against Catholic nominees. Its next move was during the school election, when it opposed the Catholic nominees. Later its efforts were felt in the Police Department, and now it is stronger than ever. Shortly after the political pot began to boil this year the members of the order became active again, and the candidates for sheriff on both tickets are A. P. A. men, while the nominees for most of the important offices are also said to be members of the order or in sympathy with its principles. The Catholic Populists and Democrats have bolted their ticket and Republican Catholics will probably follow the same course. A lively campaign is promised.

He Never Hides on the Ball.

From the Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.
While in West Chester a few days ago Allen Wray said: "I will be 77 years of age next month, and have never as yet ridden in a railroad car, a horse car or an electric car, neither do I know the pleasure of such a ride. I have been in Philadelphia on but three occasions, and each time I walked the entire distance. I don't think that traveling by rail is remarkably disagreeable, but I never had any desire to ride a rail car."

PROLIFIC PLAYWRIGHTS

The Multitude of New Dramas Which Are Produced by American Authors.

In point of fact there never has been so prolific a creation of manuscript plays as at present. The growth more than keeps up with the increase of our population. It seems to be more like the proliferation of germs, about which medical men have so much to say, than like the normal increase of human beings. A manager of a city theater is greatly surprised on a day when he does not receive a new drama at his office, with the request to read it carefully and notify the author when to expect a rehearsal, and whether he is to pre-fer to make payment in lump sum or by royalty. Let us estimate that twenty-five new plays are received each day by the citizens and citizens-ess of the United States.
Some of these are kept at home to be read to admiring friends, others are held by the typewriter by virtue of the lien which the law allows for work, labor and service, but the bulk of them find their way into the manager's office. They come by mail, by express, by messenger, or they are brought by the author himself. The latter method is expected to be the most effective, but managers become case hardened, even against beauty in distress. Plays that are not written stand very little chance of being read. If manuscript and rolled they are written stand very little chance of being read as far as the first few pages. By the time the manager knows whether or not to pass it over to his reader, there is a living chance that the play will be like it enough to tell the manager that it might answer it. It is a sure loss of time and money.
The many plays out of a given thousand reached this point, but it would not be a bad guess to assert that only a few are given a reading, and that only a few are given a production. Many have been written and submitted during this period.

Supposed to Be Here.
The police were yesterday asked to hunt an 18-year-old colored boy named Lawrence, who ran away from his home in St. Louis, and is supposed to have come to this city. His father is here looking for him.

THEY WILL ESCAPE.

Little Chance of Punishing the East St. Louis Wire Tappers.

TWO OF THE PRISONERS ARRESTED YESTERDAY HAVE BEEN RELEASED.

McKenzie, Woolfork and Thomas Are Still Held by the East Side Authorities. However—Movement to Make East St. Louis the International Headquarters of the Railway Trainmen—Bellefonte.

The East St. Louis police yesterday unearthed a scheme to tap the telephone wires near the East side race track. A little house on Fifth street, near the Cairo Short Line shops, owned by a colored man named Thos. Woolfork had been rented for the purpose, and a full outfit of telephone instruments, wires, switches and tools had been stored in one of the rooms. The police got wind of it, and after capturing the tools arrested Woolfork and two other colored men, L. Thomas and Joseph Joiner. Woolfork disclaimed any knowledge of the things in the house. He claimed to have turned the house over to two white men, whose names he gave, for a consideration. The white men, he said, told him they were going to keep two women in the house Friday night, and gave him $5 to allow them to stay. On this information the police arrested two horsemen, Daniel McCarty, and John McKenzie, on suspicion of being the wire tappers. Being questioned by the police, McKenzie and McCarty both denied any knowledge of the captured outfit. They told the same story as Woolfork about renting the house for an orgie with two women, but claimed they did not stay in the house, as the females failed to keep their engagement. Chief Walsh ordered the release of McCarty and Joiner yesterday afternoon. McKenzie, Woolfork and Thomas were held to await developments. There is no doubt that the police room wires were to be tapped, as all the utensils necessary for the purpose were found, but the scheme was slipped in the end, and no serious case can be made out against the prisoners, as they were prevented from attempting to carry out their plans. The local lodges of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen have organized a movement to secure the establishment of the international headquarters in East St. Louis. An offer of a free site for a suitable building on the corner of Broadway and Champa street has been secured, and a $5,000 start on the house fund has been made. International headquarters of the Brotherhood are now at Galesburg, Ill., but are to be removed from that place. At the last annual meeting it was decided to establish headquarters elsewhere, with the understanding that the city making the best bid at the next yearly session, which will be held in Boston. The bid has not been decided upon the 15th inst., should have the plum. Though the location has not been decided upon the establishment of the headquarters is assured, and the members of the local lodges are confident of landing the prize for East St. Louis. It is said that a large building to cost not less than $75,000 will be required, and that between 50 and 60 persons will find employment at the headquarters, principally in printing supplies for the lodges. Mr. and Mrs. J. Bailey of Collinsville avenue were given a surprise party Friday night by Robert Morris Chapter, order of the Eastern Star, of which they are members. At 10 a. m. to-day a street car will be started on a trial trip from the power-house at Broadway and Champa street to the eastern extension of the electric line to the grounds at Fireworks Station. T. W. Gregory, President of the Baptist Young People's Union, was tendered a surprise reception last night at his home on 15th Eighth street by the members of the union. The High School Literary Society has organized a "senate" and "house" and elected officers of both branches. This society will hold regular meetings bi-weekly. The Howe School building is being equipped with a system of fire alarm bells. Two new rooms in this building will be opened in a short time. Miss Pearl Marlan leaves this week for Boston, where she will visit her parents. The first copies of the Capitol Directory of East St. Louis for 1898 were issued yesterday. P. S. Allen, Deputy Warden of the Chester Penitentiary, is visiting friends here. Mrs. Millie Wright is in Effingham visiting Mrs. J. A. McCalland. Mrs. D. W. Coughlan, Mrs. D. H. Sprecher and Mrs. J. J. Whaley have returned from Chicago. Mrs. Dora Mann of Terre Haute is here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey. Rev. W. E. Stephens of St. Louis will lecture at the E. Y. M. C. A. rooms to-day. The service at the M. C. Church to-day will be conducted by Secretary McCune of the Y. M. C. A. of St. Louis.

Bellefonte. The first arrest of the season for violation of the game law was made yesterday. Fred Kalkman of Marietta was brought here and arraigned before Justice Medard on the charge of shooting a quail. He was fined $5 and costs, amounting in all to $23.35. From to-day quail may be killed without violation of the law. It is announced that the base ball season here has closed, but there is a possibility that Bellefonte's crack club, the Clerks, may play one more game before disbanding. The managers of the Clerks and Murphysboro are negotiating for another game between these teams, to be played at Murphysboro. Coroner Campbell held an inquest yesterday over the remains of Chris Stenglein, a miner, who fell from a car at the Freeburg mine Thursday night and died Friday night. The verdict was death from paralysis, the jury finding that the man had suffered a paralytic stroke which caused him to fall from the car. Stenglein was married and lived at Freeburg. Sheriff J. D. Langley left yesterday for St. Louis with three convicts, Frank Scott, William Lawiston and James Collins. Scott goes to the pen for nine years for burglary and larceny. Lawiston for four years for horse stealing and Collins for two years for robbery. Thomas Stanton was brought here yesterday from East St. Louis, where he had been arrested on an indictment for robbery. The charge is an old one, Stanton being accused of a small robbery said to have been committed in July. Building permits were issued yesterday to Ella Shipman for a $2,000 dwelling to be erected in Oakland; addition, Dominick Carte for a brick addition to cost $500; Adam Glits for a stable to cost $225. Max, Emilie Adam and wife are in Chicago attending the fair. Mr. and Mrs. Morris Lewis of Ottawa, Ill., are visiting Col. John Thomas and wife, Mrs. Lewis' parents. Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Reinecke spent last week at the World's Fair. Miss Cora Sawyer of Nashville is here visiting Mrs. R. D. Woodley. No services will be held at the First M. E. Church to-day, as the pastor is attending a conference at Florida. The Handle Coal Co. of Freeburg elected new directors yesterday. Judge Benjamin Boneau and wife went to Chicago to visit the family last week. Miss Carrie Frick is entertaining Misses Anna and Mattilda Spies of St. Louis. Verdict of Accident. An inquest was held yesterday on the body of George Hittberger of 1443 North Ninth street, who died on Thursday of injuries received by being crushed by a Broadway trolley car on Broadway near Montgomery street. The verdict was accident.

A NEW LEGAL FAD,
The Chattel Deed of Trust Now Popular
With Embarrassed Merchants.
The latest legal "wrinkle" to delay a general assignment for the benefit of creditors is a hybrid document called by some law

There are fads and fashions among lawyers in the exercise of their profession, the objects of which are the same as those among women in the matter of dress to catch the eye or do something apparently odd or original. A little eccentricity, a dash of originality, will attract the public gaze. In the profession, as in the bazaar, in legal circles, it is to make the public believe that the general assignment laws of the State have been broken, that the public is deceived. The lawyer has found a new means of escaping the law, and he is anxious to show it to the public. He sees it to make a business.

The majority of the business man in town when he is unable to meet maturing obligations, and a certain class of creditors, who are not willing to wait for a little time.

It is to him this much desired remedy. The inventive genius of the lawyer is to get into play a new twist or turn of mind, to break up the system or prevent the legal grip of the creditor. He delays matters to a certain extent, and he is always turning wheels into play and creating confusion.

There is nothing new in the various states of the law, but it is a new twist of mind applying them at times that constitutes novelty.

It is always been a maxim of common law and a provision of the statute law of every State that a man can prefer his creditors. It is a maxim of the law of creditors has always been upheld by the courts.

other directions, are provided for by law, and a very wide range given to equity in dealing with them and protecting innocent parties. The most prevalent method for years of preference a creditor, when a man became involved an assignment was inevitable, was quietly into court and confess judgment the amount instituted for that purpose. This indentment, of course, became a

A debtor could thus prefer two, three or four creditors, and the balance would go to whoever was left by instituting attachment suits or in proceedings under general assignment.

The so-called "chattel deed of trust" is nothing more than the old chattel mortgage, except that a special trust is created out of it by inserting special provisions relating to possession and sale of the effects. The debtor who is oppressed, and who cannot meet his obligations for the being, and who does not want to be closed or sold out under an execution issued on attachment, selects a sufficient number of creditors whose claims will cover the bulk of his assets, and executes a chattel mortgage to secure them.

This mortgage becomes a lien on the property which the other creditors, who have prior judgments or liens, must respect.

As it is made for a specified time the

erty is virtually exempt from all legal process until the expiration of that time, and the debtor with the preferred creditors, at the much desired time he was seeking, can then, without molestation, continue to run his business and either set himself on his feet again or wind up the affairs of the concern more satisfactorily to himself than under a general assignment. The debtor who becomes

His possession, however, is only a constructive one, as the original owner continues in actual possession and disposes of goods for the benefit of the mortgagees, are the preferred creditors. While a method of adjusting claims between de-

Electrical Eel Upset.

There exists an account, given by famous Humboldt, of the capture of the trical eel or gymnotus, by the South American Indians. This account has been copied into natural history works by reason of its being invested with the authority of the great traveler. The gymnotus is way, was the eel on which Faraday experimented with reference to its electrical powers. It represents, along with certain other and different fishes, a very curious modification of muscle and nerve.

Humboldt, in describing the capture of these eels by the Indians on the llano of Caracas (where the famous traveler witnessed the scene of his narrative) spoke of driving of horses into the pools or water which the fishes abound. The eels were described as attacking the animals, and giving them shock after shock, so that horses rushed hither and thither, with balls staring and manes erect. When eels had thus exhausted their electric energy on the horses they retired to the sides of the pools and could then be taken out by the Indians without fear of consequence.

Now a writer has recently given a different version of the matter, says a writer in London Illustrated News. It is stated that Indians capture the eels not by means of horses, but by aid of nets. Furthermore, Indians wear India-rubber gloves, which, he supposes, serve as insulators, so that the fishes can be taken without any risk of the captors being "shocked" in a very practical fashion. The writer in question says that

The first point for discussion is: How could Humboldt to write such an account if, as most recent information I have quoted alleges, horses could not be used to capture the ocelots?

This difficulty may be explained either by the assumption that once horses were employed, or on that which might hold. Humboldt got his description second hand. I do not know whether Humboldt gives account as that of an eye witness of the scene, but in any case, it is somewhat a puzzle to reconcile the old statement with the new.

boy yesterday.

"Oh, you mean the Virginia Building, George Washington's home. Well, I guess we'll have to take him [there]," said the father to his mother.

"This is Martha's room," said the father after they had entered the building.

"Who's Martha, pa—the cook?"

"No, she was George Washington's wife."
"Well, our cook's named Martha. Say, what all did George do?"
"Tut, tut, child; you musn't speak so familiarly of the father of your country."
"Was he my father, too?"
"Yes, in a way."
"Then my name's Washington, ain't it?"
"No, my son; don't ask so many fool questions."
"My father, too?"

"Was he your father, too?"
"Yes, yes."
"Was he, mamma?"
"Shut up. He was the father of the whole country, I told you."
"Was he the father of his wife?"
"Am I your mother's father?"
"No; you said George was."
"Now keep still and don't ask any more questions."
Then George had lots of children.

A REMEDY FOR SNAKE BITE.
It seems to be Equally as Good as

Dr. C. D. E. Kirk of Onondagua, Miss., sends to the Eclectic Medical Journal a prescription for snake bite, which seems to be fully

"A few weeks ago a negro and his wife brought their 8-year-old boy to my office for treatment for snake bite, which had occurred only thirty minutes before their arrival. There were two wounds about an inch and a half apart, from which the blood was flowing rapidly. The snake was a long, blunt-tailed moccasin—a "copper head" and "black body," as poisonous as the "cotton mouth" moccasin. The boy had stepped on the snake's head, and the snake had laid a fair strike at his leg about five inches below the knee.

After a moment's pause, the man picked up the snake and, with much persuasion, induced the man to apply his mouth to the wound and suck the poison out. Immediately thereafter the man was given some strong alcohol to rinse his mouth, which I assured him would destroy the poison. When the man had rinsed his mouth, after thoroughly emptying the fang wound, I gave him a half-ounce of alcohol. In this way, and the help of a half-ounce of saturated solution of permanganate of potash in each wound, the boy allayed the pain.

After a few minutes I gave him a strong string which the man had tied around the leg, remained until morning, when the boy, after a fair rest, was able to walk without pain or swelling, no further trouble.

A strong solution of the permanganate of potash gives almost immediate relief from pain, and from repeated trials I believe it

He was very much swollen. I immediately injected a strong solution of iodine, and he was able to walk. I immediately called, and he was soon well.

ANOTHER ETON JACKET.

It is Quite an Improvement Over its Predecessors.

The last Eton jacket to appear has many advantages over its predecessors. It may be worn over a cloth bodice or a negligee shirt front. The jacket is made of finely striped silk, pale heliotrope and black, pink and black and sometimes of a number of delicate colors. It is cut just to touch the waist line, and has a turn-over collar and medium sized revers. The jacket is edged with a silk embroidered trimming. The background is white, worked in the same colors in which the silk is striped. The sleeve reaches just below the elbow and ends in a deep point finished with the trimming.

AN EMPIRE MANTLE.

The empire mantle shown in this picture occupies a distinctive place in an autumn wardrobe. There are times when one is gowned in a severe tailor-made costume and something comes up all in a minute which requires a little more dress. Wouldn't a woman then bless the lace and frills of this

Empire mantle! It may be slipped on in a hurry and gives the desired dress effect. The garment is three-quarter length and is made of grenadine, which hangs straight and full from the slightly shirred yoke. It is trimmed around the bottom with three graduated rows of black satin ribbon and is finished with a deep dounce of black Chantilly lace. Encircling the yoke back and front is a border of the lace. Where the garment fastens in front is a bow of black satin ribbon with long ends. The high collar of the grenadine is outlined with jet passementerie and a fringe of jet decorative upper part of the yoke. The sleeve is a thing of beauty. From beneath an epaulet of grenadine and lace emerges a huge puff of eminence velvet. At the wrist this is finished with a deep fall of lace, through the network of which black ribbons are run. The lace falls over the hand.

neck-opening of bodices. Too great regularity in the length of the loops must be avoided.

Puff Ruche.

A puffed ruche, looped over with very narrow ribbon, finishes off the pointed neck-opening of full net bodices.

Berthes and Jabots.

The indications are that lace has by no means exhausted its popularity as a garniture for dresses. Certainly nothing is more successful in transforming a plain and commonplace toilette into one that is decidedly graceful and becoming.

Men, whose ideas about women's dress are few and primitive, but also immovable, always look with pleased eyes on a soft fall of lace. It is a fact that since the old days, when the ruler and the needle adorned themselves with ruffles of lace and soft muslin, this modern trimming has been more exclusively feminine than any other means of adornment. Lace and ribbons and silk will be again combined this spring to make these dainty berthes and jabots which are such a beneficial addition to a limited wardrobe. With one or more of these women can make the same gown do duty for a variety of occasions.

The berthe shown here, to be worn with a low-cut dress, is of fine thread lace, of that creamy tint which used to be indicative of age but is now counterfeited by the manufacturer. The ribbon should match the gown, and can be changed to harmonize with different toilets.

The jabot of crepe and lace is to be worn with a high-necked dress, to which it would give a very pleasing brightness.

FOR GRANDMAMA'S GOWNS.

A Collar Has Been Devised Which Will Gratify the Elderly. Even if her hair is gray and her face a bit wrinkled the elderly woman enjoys the dainty belongings of dress, perhaps, just as much as her granddaughter.

Here is a becoming collar which she might wear over the bodice of her best black silk gown. It is made of white chiffon, with a full ruche, plaited collar and long ends. Over the chiffon, delicately embroidered in black silk, is a tiny leaf design. These collar-ettes are also made of violet silk mullie embroidered in mauve-colored silk.

A Supper Dish.

Take three pounds of lean, finely chopped beef, one dozen rolled butter crackers, four beaten eggs, one tablespoonful of black pepper, one tablespoonful of salt and butter the size of an egg. Mix thoroughly, mold into two loaves and bake like a roast. When cold serve in thin slices. A little sage may be added.

IDEAL FOR A GARDEN PARTY.

A Hat of Valenciennes Lace and White Ostrich Tips. There are occasions when an all-white hat is in good taste and effective. At a garden party nothing looks prettier if it is worn with a shiny, soft gown.

The illustration shows a large hat, just imported by a Broadway house, with a daring brim made of creamy white Valenciennes lace. At the back the hat turns up to make room for a bit of a bow of cream ribbon and three curly ostrich tips. Ribbon of the same creamy tint crosses and recrosses the crown until it appears as if it were fashioned entirely of ribbon.

Towering above the crown is a cream-white feather having for a background a loop of ribbon with two cut ends.

The brim is defined by a band of feather trimming, and is finished with just the fancy edge of the lace falling a little over the brim. Tucked away underneath it is the palest of tea roses. The hat cannot be appreciated until seen, but its price, $30, may give some idea of how pretty it must be.

A POMPADOUR BONNET.

In Heliotrope Straw, Trimmed With Black Ribbon. The popularity of the bonnet is somewhat hidden under the shadow of the broad-brimmed hat this season. The two bonnets which are in favor have come out from the past and have been modified just a bit to suit the piquant face of the 1893 girl. One is the quaint "1830" poke; the other is the pompadour bonnet.

The latter is shown in the illustration. It is made of two contrasting shades of straw, heliotrope, with a brim of black. The crown is trimmed with a ruche of heliotrope ribbon. Three ostrich tips in shades of violet and mauve are fashioned at the front and curl over the brim.

Near the feathers, standing up very straight, is a loop of black velvet ribbon, held in place by a rosette of gilt. Another gilt rosette is tucked away beneath the brim. There are narrow heliotrope velvet tie strings.

Dolly Madison's Mirror.

Mrs. Madeline Vinson Dahlgren has in the dining-room of her house in Washington the mirror used by Dolly Madison in the White House and afterward in her home as long as she lived.

Of course girls have a fond. This year it is the blouse waist. She is collecting these dainty waists with the same energy that she did souvenir spoons. At present the surplus seems to be in high favor. Its simplicity rather appeals to the girl because, for reasons all her own, she likes to look demure. Dotted swiss and nainsook are the materials mostly used for these cross-over waists. The blouse of Chambray, with yoke and cuffs of embroidery, is another pretty fancy. Waists of silk gingham, made with a plaited full down the front and the belt fastened with a ribbon rosette, are very much in vogue. The sleeves of these waists are made in any number of ways, as shown in the illustration. The plainer the sleeves the better, as sometimes it is worn under an Eton jacket. Fancy little Bolero jackets dress up a blouse waist effectively.

Hanging Brush Case.

A dainty brush case, for use in a guest-chamber, is made from a strip of fine white linen 6 inches wide and 18 inches long.

This is embroidered on both edges with wash gold tinsel in any pretty conventional border pattern. The one shown is very effective and can be easily copied by cutting from a piece of stout brown paper or from a card a long, pointed, leaf-shaped design, and then, with this as a pattern, marking them along both edges and filling the points with rays of the thread which start from a common point.

After the linen is embroidered it should be lined with white rubber cloth, the ends brought together and fastened to the little rings of a brass rod, which can be purchased at any of the fancy goods stores, and is exceedingly pretty for hanging by.

"But the Greatest of These Is Charity."

The editor of the Ypsilanti Commercial is responsible for this item: We happened by accident upon a page from the account book of one of Ypsilanti's first young ladies. Following are a few of the actual items: Gloves, $2; marshmallows, 50 cents; dressmaker, $15; charity, 1 cent; perfume, $1.50.

A Woman's Useful Invention.

Mrs. Rosalie Miller, a quick-witted New York woman, has just patented an invention which will be useful to housekeepers in the season of canning and preserving fruit. It is a preserve-jar lifter, simple, inexpensive and adjustable, and is meant to remove jars when filled from the bath of boiling water which surrounds them to the brim.

To Educate Poor Girls.

At the meeting of the Georgia Press Association at Macon, a resolution offered by Miss Ellen Dorich of Milledgeville was adopted, appropriating $150 for the education of some poor but deserving young girls at the Girl's Normal and Industrial School at Milledgeville. The American Weekly Press Association had already contributed a like amount to the education of a girl, and the Woman's Press Club is preparing to do the same thing.

It's English, You Know.

A hat shown in London with a brim of board-like flatness and astonishing width is made of pale gray felt. The crown is very low. On one side a couple of velvet loops are fastened with a jeweled buckle and two long gray ostrich plumes curl towards the back.

A French Chemise.

The illustration shows a dainty chemise of French importation. It is made of fine, white nainsook, shirred at the neck and waist. Pale blue ribbon is run through the shirring at the neck and tied in a bow. It has across the shoulders a never-like trimming made of bands of insertion in pale blue mull finished with a rill of the same kind of embroidery. The chemise, extending to the knees, where it is quite full, and is finished with a blue embroidered ruffle.

A Girl Up Among the Clouds.

A young Englishwoman, Miss C. M. Symonds, daughter of J. Addison Symonds, the well-known writer, lives with her father at Doves, among the Alps, thousands of feet above the sea level. Instead of finding the distant retreat dull, Miss Symonds has kept her eyes open and has written a remarkably interesting paper on "Birds in an Alpine Garden."

TWO PRETTY COSTUMES.

One for Afternoon, and the Other for Evening Wear. There was a time when only the plain gown was permissible for street wear. The frills and furbelows were all bestowed upon the evening costume. This year woman has tossed all rules to the winds and dresses according to her own sweet will.

Here is a pretty costume which shows this tendency. It is designed for afternoon. It could be slipped on for an afternoon walk. The material is white organdie, powdered with purple and violet. A puffed ruche, made up over a foundation of violet taffeta

TEA-CLOTH MADE OF DAMASK TOWELS.

The towels for this or larger cloths are joined by rows of crochet insertion. The idea of using damask towels laid aside for the more fashionable fancy huckabees and Turkish toweling, may be welcome to many ladies. When a pretty pattern of insertion is used the effect is to enhance the general attractiveness of the set table.

SINGS AT HIS WORK

ITY CHEMIST TRICHMAN HAS A NOTION OF HIS OWN

Prof. Buckland, the assistant to Dr. W. G. Crochran, City Chemist, has been granted a two week leave of absence by the Board of Health to visit the World's Fair. He departed for the White City day before yesterday, and the consequence is the City Chemist has not it lonely and cheerless in his spacious quarters at Twelfth and Market streets. He is not a man given to melancholy mood, and although his only companions are his assistant's departure have been pills, test-tubes, retorts, burnettes and volthe refrain which followed was lost in the confusion, but nothing daunted the tireless doctor, who kept his health of the city in his hands or rather his labora-

y, gave a third verse:
 Where the lean-man sends in a cake
 green-colored just as green as a lake.
 Where there's a lady of the W. C. U.
 She brings packages of cigarettes and gum the chippies there.

 could be injured or killed, pressed his foot the button and sounded the gong.

 and in the crowd below, asked what was the matter.

 there. The crowd asked, "What the w
